Navigating Your Saturn Return Based On Your Sign And House Placement

The Saturn Return is a significant astrological event that occurs when Saturn completes its orbit around the sun and returns to the same position it was in at the time of your birth.

This happens approximately every 29-30 years and is a time of potent transformation as it represents what you are here to learn and master the energy of in this lifetime. In this blog post, we'll explore what the Saturn Return means for each sign and house.

How Will Your Saturn Return Affect You?

The 2.5-3 year period of your Saturn Return (which takes place when you're first in the ages of 28-30, then when you're 58-60, and again when you're 88-90 years old) brings important lessons to the forefront of your life. So, it's crucially important to understand the exact 'curriculum' your soul has signed up for.

Once you've found the sign and house where Saturn falls in your natal chart, here's a brief overview of what you can expect during your Saturn Return:

Saturn Return In 1st House / Aries

The 1st house represents your physical body, self-image, and personal identity, so the Saturn Return in this house can be a particularly challenging time. You may feel a sense of restriction or limitation in your self-expression, as Saturn demands that you take responsibility for your life and make mature, practical decisions.

During this period, you may experience a significant shift in your self-image and personal identity. You may feel pressure to conform to societal expectations or take on more responsibility in your personal and professional life.

You may also feel a sense of self-doubt or insecurity as you confront the reality of your limitations and vulnerabilities. However, the Saturn Return in the 1st house or Aries is also an excellent opportunity for personal growth and self-discovery. It's a time to take stock of your life and assess where you want to go in the future.

You may feel a renewed sense of purpose and direction as you clarify your goals and priorities.

SATURN RETURN IN 1ST HOUSE / ARIES LESSONS:

- Productively harnessing your competitive energy
- Wisely picking your battles
- Effectively managing your energy to avoid burnout

SATURN RETURN IN 1ST HOUSE / ARIES TIP:

Daily physical movement is vital for learning to listen to your body and follow the flow of your natural energy rhythms.

Saturn Return In 2nd House / Taurus

The 2nd house represents your values, resources, and sense of self-worth, so the Saturn Return in this house can be a particularly challenging time. You may feel a sense of restriction or limitation in your finances, as Saturn demands that you take responsibility for your financial situation and make mature, practical decisions.

During this period, you may experience financial setbacks or challenges that force you to reevaluate your priorities and change your lifestyle. You may also feel pressure to conform to societal expectations and take on more responsibility in your personal and professional life.

However, the Saturn Return in the 2nd house or Taurus is also an excellent opportunity for personal growth and self-discovery. It's a time to take stock of your values and priorities and to develop a more grounded, practical approach to your finances and resources.

SATURN RETURN IN 2ND HOUSE / TAURUS LESSONS:

- Defining your core values and what is truly important to you
- Self-worth and self-love

- Money mindset and scarcity/abundance mindset

SATURN RETURN IN 2ND HOUSE / TAURUS TIP:

Spend time getting clear on your top 4-5 core values in life, and then go through where you are spending your time, money, and energy with a fine-toothed comb. Then, reduce or eliminate anything that doesn't ultimately serve your core values.

Saturn Return In 3rd House / Gemini

The 3rd house represents communication, learning, and your immediate environment. It also governs your relationships with siblings, neighbors, and community members.
